« Cask sample. Mid dark crimson. Not very expressive at first , mostly dark-red fruit and a touch of sweet spice. Dusty/rocky cloak. Firm and chewy with definite oak and very nice freshness lifting it from its dark rather embryonic state. With air, the fruit starts to emerge on the nose. All in place, needs time, but there's generous fruit at the core. 16.5/20" – Julia Harding – jancisrobinson.com

"Very interesting top note. More lift than the village Pommard. But surprisingly evolved aromatically. Good freshness on the finish. Very suave and charming. Bone dry." Score 16.5 Jancis Robinson_ Feb 2012

"Just above Epenots. One grower. It is not a 'strong' climate of pommard, but rather a warmer place. Good perfume. Soft onto the palate. Quite plump. The focus here is on the fruit. It is silky and charming and shows a fluid energy across the palate. It is woven with freshness. This is remarkably silky given it is 100% whole bunch. This rather elegant. Particularly good++. From 2015" Score 17.5

" This is also attractively refined with fresh and ripe scents of violets, earth and an exuberant mix of wild red berries. The supple, delicious, round and nicely voluminous flavors possess good focus on the firm, long and moderately austere finish. There is a good but not special depth and length but this could surprise to the upside as there is certainly quality underlying material. 2017+" Score 87-90
